Raptivity to Launch a Mac Version at the Distance Teaching & Learning Conference

Visit Raptivity booth #116 at the Distance Teaching & Learning Conference.

Raptivity will be exhibiting its flagship interactivity building tool at the Distance Teaching & Learning Conference 2016, being held in Madison, Wisconsin, from August 9 – 11. At this event Raptivity plans to unveil its new offering – Raptivity for Mac. The wait is finally over – now Mac users will be able to create eLearning interactions using Raptivity.

The Distance Teaching & Learning Conference has been around for more than 30 years. The conference focuses on evidence based practice, practical application, education innovation and peer-to-peer networking and collaboration for distance teaching and learning purposes. Packed with 130+ sessions, the conference is a hub for thousands of speakers and distance education professionals. The conference topics cover various topics including distance learning best practices, case studies, discussions on emerging trends, and more.

Jamaica Glenn, Senior Business Development Manager, Harbinger Knowledge Products will be presenting Raptivity at the eTools Demo Stage in the conference. Raptivity offers an assortment of 190+ customizable interaction templates, which help in creating eLearning interactions, quickly and easily, without any programming.

Janhavi Padture, Vice President, Strategy and Business Development, Harbinger Knowledge Products, is excited about the launch of Raptivity Mac version at the conference. Janhavi says, ‘As we celebrate 10 years of Raptivity, I am proud and happy that our leading eLearning Interactivity Builder on Windows is now available for Mac, with similar features. I am also pleased to announce that the annual license of Raptivity Mac will be available for only $99 as a limited time introductory offer.’
