Raptivity to exhibit at UW-Madison Distance Teaching & Learning

Conference

Raptivity to demonstrate its latest eLearning offering - Raptivity Linker, at the conference

Join team Raptivity at UW-Madison Distance Teaching and Learning Conference from Aug 11-13, 2015 at Madison, Wisconsin, for a quick demo of Raptivity and its latest offering – Raptivity Linker. The team will be exhibiting the products at booth #13.

The UW-Madison Distance Teaching & Learning Conference is recognized internationally for its quality, integrity, and longevity. During its 30-year history, this premier conference has gathered thousands of speakers and distance education professionals to share ideas, resources, research, and best practices.

This year, when the conference unfolds on Aug 11, 2015, visitors to the Raptivity booth will get to experience variety of rapid eLearning templates offered by Raptivity. Along with Raptivity, the team also plans to demonstrate its latest offering - Raptivity Linker. It is a free add-on to Raptivity and allows users to thread together stand-alone Raptivity interactions and build mini courses out of them. Jamaica Glenn from team Raptivity will also conduct a 20 minutes Learning Stage session on 'Games in Learning – Using Rapid interactivity Approach'.

Jamaica, who is a well known face at such events, and is also a Raptivity Valued Professional, seems quite upbeat about the conference and says, "I am glad that Raptivity would exhibit at this event. Since it is a very significant event for distance educators, we plan to showcase our most significant eLearning offerings here – Raptivity and Raptivity Linker, The unique concept of interactivity in eLearning combined with a no-programming framework to join interactions, is a powerful solution that is bound to change the way we think of interactive learning today. I encourage attendees to stop by the booth and have a look at both the products
